Ordered, That the Scaffold on which the KING is to be executed, be cover'd with Cloth.

The Warrant for executing the KING being accordingly delivered to those Persons to whom the same was directed. Execution was done unto him according to the Tenour thereof, about Two o'Clock in the Afternoon, of the said 30th Day of January, 1648.

The Fatal Day of the said Execution being Tuesday, January the 30th, 1648.

His Majesty continued in Prayer all the Morning, and received the Sacrament just at Ten a'Clock before Noon, he was conveyed on Foot from St. James's Palace to Whitehall, guarded by a Regiment of Foot Soldiers, part before, part behind, with Colours flying, and Drums beating, his private Guards of Partisans about him, and Dr.
Juxon (Bishop of London) next to him on one side, and Col. Thynne on the other: Being come to Whitehall, he continued in his Cabinet-Chamber at his Devotions, refusing to dine, only about 12 o'Clock, he was conveyed into the Banqueting-House, and the great Window enlarged, out of which he alreadie the Scaffold, the Gallie being hung round, and the Floor covered with Cloth: His Executioners di-guised with Vines, yet was His Majesty not affrighted: He shew'd more Care of sicke People living, than of himself dying: For looking round about upon the People, whom the rest Guards of Soldiers kept a great Distance off, and seeing he could not be heard by them, entiring (probably) what he purposed to have said to them, therefore turning to the Officers and Adicts by him, he said (in French) if I had (the excellent Speech) which being ended, he then went to Prayer and after some heavy Discourse between him and the Bishops having prepared himself, he lifted up his Eyes to Heaven, and praying to himself, he bowed down to the Block, and with his hands before his garment Nock to God, in silent off by the world (which was which was suddenly done to me now). So the King came to the place all shewing him his
